Dear Minister,

I write in relation to the delays in delivering the promised Edmondson Park School.

It has been more than a year since the Liberal Government put the planning process for a new school on hold. Factoring in the average times it takes for projects to get approval and the construction period, the opening of a new school in Edmondson Park could be up to four years away.

This is simply not good enough. I share the frustration of local parents who just want to send their kids to a local school.

About 150 local residents have signed my petition calling on the Liberal Government to fast-track the delivery of a school in Edmondson Park and include funding for construction in the coming Budget.

Edmondson Park desperately needs vital infrastructure and services to support a growing population.

I look forward to your advice on when local residents can expect the delivery of Edmondson Park School.

Yours sincerely,
